Report from Dr. mult. Holger Wolf, immunologist and cellular biologist

Show us a virus, please. If you make this request, it will unfortunately remain unsuccessful, because nobody is able to show you a virus. The so-called pathogen detection of all diseases allegedly caused by viruses is always indirect: detection of antibodies, detection of lymphocytic pleocytosis. But a virus is never detected directly. So how can someone want to demonstrate an antibody response to something that no one knows? So-called microbes exist and many can be responsible, but this is not the desired goal, because with an undetectable pathogen, i.e. a so-called virus, you can invent many more diseases, because nobody can refute an assertion, the pure fiction is. The interest groups that generate unimaginable profits with the phantom virus have simply made viruses so small that it should never be possible to detect them directly. A very clever move to say something that no one can refute, because refuting a pure claim for something that cannot be represented is like trying to prove the non-existence of a god. It is impossible to prove an unproven phantom, in which everyone believes but is pure theory, as non-existent if the existence of this cannot be proven. However, it is possible to put a pure theory as truth in people's minds if this happens on a large scale and is repeated over and over again. It's about the same as the following story: There is an accident between two vehicles, the occupants of both vehicles are dead, so no one can be interviewed. Now the police are simply claiming that extraterrestrials were to blame. This is now being disseminated in all media until everyone believes it and a theory is born that no one doubts any more, because after all everyone says so.

Quote: "A lie becomes more credible the bigger it is and the more it is repeated."
Prof. Dr. L. Dayeng, biologist and immunology

But how did this virus theory actually come about? We owe this theory to Mr. Louis Pasteur. Louis Pasteur was a proven science fraud, that is proven today and even Wikipedia makes no secret of it. Nevertheless, conventional medicine and dependent science continue to adhere to this unproven theory.

At the time of Louis Pasteur there were many stray dogs and rabies among them and the wolves was rampant. Pasteur had a rabid dog strapped to a board and then took saliva for his experimental purposes. He assumed - and our modern medicine as well - that the rabies pathogen must be in the dog's saliva.

But it was never detected there, because the only animal that has poison in its saliva or in its mouth is the snake and the monitor lizard. Veterinarians also confirm that you cannot find a rabies pathogen in the saliva of a rabid animal and you can breed it in the laboratory.

Another obstacle turned out to be that the pathogens apparently did not want to grow as Pasteur had imagined. For this purpose, he brought saliva from a rabid dog into a bowl. After nothing had happened for several weeks, he concluded that the rabies pathogen was a very, very tiny and demanding germ because it could not be found and simply called it a virus, which simply means poison. So this term found its way into modern medicine. Insane? Yes, very crazy, but the true.

The Austrian doctor Dr. Johann Loibner had dealt intensively with the history and origins of vaccination and provides an obvious explanation of the charlatanism and money-making behind this gigantic fraud system.

With the withdrawal of his license to practice, the vaccine industry has almost ennobled him as a reconnaissance expert, because whoever is too dangerous for these criminals must be stopped and / or eliminated at all costs, he was not the first and will not be the last.
At that time, when I was still working in this "health" system, I also received a visit from the so-called medical association, just because I followed the law and did an intensive education about the vaccines for every patient. That was and is undesirable.

Perhaps you are wondering whether the topic is not too sensitive to simply refrain from vaccinations "just like that"? After all, almost everyone does it. Or maybe you think that at least this or that vaccination "as a precaution" should be administered as a precaution, because the allegedly prevented disease is too high a risk? Also, would "reputable" and "knowledgeable" doctors ever inject anything dangerous or useless into you or your children? On this basis, namely without any background knowledge, it is better not to make a decision at all. So why not transfer the risk to those who are supposed to be familiar with it and who describe the vaccinations as effective and safe? The doctors.

Before the next vaccination for yourself or your child, have the vaccinating doctor sign our attached form. That shouldn't be a problem for the doctor if everything is going on with the right things. If he refuses, ask him why and consider whether you would instead be willing to take the risk of, for example, paralysis, brain damage, anaphylactic shock, cell and organ damage, cancer or even death, and why the doctor despite - or precisely because of his knowledge wants to exclude any liability for himself. By the way, around 20 million children die every year from the consequences of vaccinations worldwide.

All of this sounds very confusing to a well-behaved citizen, and many say for sure: it can't be. Just because a lie has taken on such a large scale is still a lie. Do you still believe that everything is correct? Let's take a look at the official teaching, because it is not more than that: So-called viruses are officially and also referred to in the textbooks as non-living beings because they neither have a cell nucleus nor have a metabolism. What is in the cell nucleus? Right, the genetic information, i.e. the genes. Now this tiny non-living being is said to infect our cells with its genetic information, so to speak. Where does this non-living being get its own genetic information from? It's not biology, it's nonsense. But it gets even crazier, because this non-living being called virus is supposed to bring its non-existent genetic information into our cells via its own protein. We remember that the official teaching says that this non-living being has no metabolism, but without metabolism there is no protein. Biology isn't that either, it's nonsense again.

But why do so many people let this biological nonsense be told? Because it is propagated from top to bottom. But who is promoting it? The World Health Organization (WHO) is a great helper. Well, let's see who this WHO actually is. Oh fright, it's not so neutral, it's financed by the pharmaceutical industry, that is, the industry that makes billions from these vaccinations. Well, it can only be a coincidence, isn't it? It is also propagated by the governments. Well then let's see where you can find these politicians after their term of office. Oh fright, in leading positions in the pharmaceutical industry. Can it just be a strange coincidence, right? Then there are these media, oh horror they also live from the pharmaceutical industry. What about the universities? The curriculum in medical universities has been adjusted, nutrition, cell metabolism and much more has been replaced by pharmacology. Is that to be believed, then again the pharmaceutical industry in this game. What about clinics? These are profit-oriented companies and by what do they make profits? With pharmaceuticals. Well, it's all just coincidences, isn't it?

The basic idea, also against bacteria, which actually exist, was as follows. It was assumed that by inoculating dead microbes, the immune system registers them so to speak, so that they are then prepared for a later serious invasion of living microbes and can react better. However, this does not work, because our immune system does not perceive these dead microbes as that, they are only bound and removed as foreign substances that do not belong here, a dead microbe is not noticed. Incidentally, this has been known for many decades. But this vaccination is just too profitable to stop. Therefore, the pharmaceutical industry has to trick a little to fake a so-called immune reaction, because an immune reaction does not take place due to dead microbes. Therefore, other toxic substances are added to the vaccine sera in order to cause a noticeable and worth seeing reaction, if possible with a fever, because a good show is everything and the masses believe better.
So let's see what's really in the vaccine sera.
We have carefully examined more than 40 different vaccine sera from 12 manufacturers in the laboratory. We found no dead microbes and certainly no dead viruses in all sera. We found human cell debris, cell debris from animals and even plants, more from the ingredients here:

Aluminum, aluminum salts, formaldehyde and other chemical compounds, thiomersal, gelatin, proteins, antibiotics, octylphenol ethoxylate, sodium phosphate, potassium phosphate, potassium chloride, calcium chloride, sodium taurodeoxycholate, neomycin sulfate, mercury, beta-propiolactone and many other toxic chemicals.

All of these ingredients are supposed to simulate a vaccination reaction and, above all, to weaken the immune system. They are highly toxic substances that cause neuronal damage, organ damage and even cancer. All of these ingredients are toxic and of course do not belong in a biological organism. This is particularly fatal for children, because the immune system has not yet developed, i.e. is weak, but is already being destroyed in the bud. Are you shocked? You should, common sense should independently recognize the danger here.

Dr. Andrew Jeremy Wakefield (UK), who published a critical article in the medical journal "The Lancet", was subsequently banned from practicing medicine. Again, the right bowed in favor of the pharmaceutical industry.

Our doctors felt the same way when they were still working in the so-called health system. So if you still believe everything is in the best order and both the government and the health system only want the best for people, you must suffer from very great cognitive dissonance and be completely blind and deaf. By the way, everyone can have the vaccines tested for themselves in the laboratory, but many of the toxic substances are already listed on the package insert. But which parents demand that? Doctors are instructed not to hand them out if possible and thus avoid the obligation to provide information and participate in intentional bodily harm.

Now you can always hear a lot of people saying, "But that can't be true, because a lot of people can be vaccinated." Yes, unfortunately, but many go to war even though these people kill and many accept it, that our environment is poisoned by industries for the sake of profit. People also assume that the "food" is contaminated with toxic chemicals and heavy metals and that these E numbers were only introduced to obscure this at first glance. Why should the pharmaceutical industry act differently and forego profits? They don't do it and act extremely unscrupulously. Only sick people are good customers for pharmaceuticals. And if these industries makes a sick immune system in good time, through vaccinations, it is extremely bearable.

As mentioned, around 20 million children die every year from the consequences of vaccinations worldwide. These are the facts that cannot be prettied up, these many dead children cannot be discussed away.

The following sheet, as mentioned above, should be printed out and presented to your doctor if it is again about vaccination. You will be amazed at how he reacts.
Medical vaccination statement

I, the signed doctor, declare that the following vaccine ...........................................................

Name of the producer ......................................................................................................................

as a prevention against the following diseases ...............................................................................

and that this vaccine is free from contamination.

I gave this vaccine to the following person today ...........................................................................

First name, Name ...............................................................................................................................

Zip Code Residential Address ........................................................................................................

Date of birth ...........................................................

At the time of vaccination, the person indicated was healthy, which I was convinced by a detailed examination. I confirm that the person did not have any cramps or other neurological disorders or allergies before the vaccination. I declare that the vaccine administered is completely harmless to the life and health of the person and will not cause any direct or indirect damage or secondary illnesses such as paralysis, brain damage, nerve damage, blindness, tuberculosis, allergies, cancer organ damage, diabetes, damage to the immune system or more, with or without death. I further confirm that the vaccine administered will prevent the disease for which it is given for ........ years. Should the illness against which vaccination occurs nevertheless occur during this time, I will voluntarily pay for the damage incurred and without a previous judicial process.

If there is any physical or psychological damage caused by today's vaccination, I also undertake to pay for the damage without any delay.

Before the vaccination, the person or the person responsible, such as parents, guardians, etc., was informed precisely about the composition of the vaccine and all possible side effects.
